No matter if you are an adult, a kid or a student yourself, you know that your university (or college) years are the most wonderful years of your life. But what do students do to make those years the best? We have collected some data on that subject, let's take a look at the charts.

As you can see we thought of 8 different types of activities of an average student. And sleeping was the most significant trend in both 2014 and 2015. You'd think studying would be the most popular thing after sleeping but it's actually sports and leisure (which became even more popular in 2015).

Educational activities actually took less time in 2015 than before. But what did students substitute it with? What did they do if they also slept and groomed less? Well, in fact, students started working more. They spent more time travelling, doing sports and (oddly enough) eating in 2015. Even the "other activities" started taking a lot less time than they used to just a year before. See it changed a lot.

We know what you think of the 'golden years' - partying, skipping lectures, hanging out with your friends... Nowadays it's actually travelling, being fit and trying to find a job. But those two expectations still have something in common - having to catch up on everything you've missed.
