A survey has been done on how students spend their time during a regular weekday, in ~~2014 and 2015~~ 2014 and 2015 to outline the most significant trends. The number of the participants was kept constant to acquire the most accurate results.

On an ordinary day in 2014 students spent most of their time sleeping. Some other activities like leisure and sports, educational and ^{work} extracurricular programs, working and "other" have consumed the most of their time, while grooming, eating and travelling were not so time-consuming.

In 2015 we could acquire some more data ^{process} to assess ~~it~~ trends. As it can be seen on the diagrams, common trends ~~keep~~ stay constant. However, we can point out a few changes.

First of all students have reduced their sleeping time for more than ten percent making it less than it is advised to sleep by the experts. In addition, students have spent less time on educational activities than before. But, at the same time their "other" category ~~greatly~~ decreased. Nowadays young people know what they want to do, they don't just waste their time. Leisure time increased for more than ~~100~~ hundred percent in 2015. Students have also started travelling more this year.

To sum up, assessed data was used to figure out that students now sacrifice their sleeping and studying time ~~for~~ in order to get more leisure time. Students also travel more ~~more~~ to get ^{to} know the world. They don't just study like people did back in the days. Young people of today ~~find~~ develop on their own terms. We can't ~~say~~ predict that the common trend will stay the same for some more years. Students will not become less independent ~~and~~ ^{more} creative and curious.
